'Muscle-Bound' as Slang Tickle Britishers

Atlantic City, N. J., July 17.—American slang is quite clever, according to D. G. A. Lowe, captain of the Oxford-Cambridge track team, now here for the contest Saturday.

"The smartest slang I heard," said Mr. Lowe, "was during an informal talk by Coach Lawson (husband of the University of Pennsylvania). In referring to a chap who was not as bright as he might have been, Coach Lawson said the chap was 'muscle-bound' between the ears."

"That was a clever way to work in a track phrase, eh, what?"

Thoroughbred Airedale Puppy Goes to Highest Bidder: Party on Monday

To you like good dogs? If you do, here is a chance to obtain a first-class, thoroughbred Airedale puppy and at the same time swell the fund started by the Boston Evening American for the widow and six young children of Police Inspector Benjamin Alexander, killed in the Pickwick Club crash.

This fine puppy is seven weeks old. His name is "Bitterwood Breeze." The Pickwick Fund editor has seen him and he is a corker. No mistake about that. The puppy's owner, Fred Woolner, proprietor of Bitterwood Kennels, Worcester, has contributed the dog for the benefit of the fund, and says it should bring a goodly sum. The pup will be delivered to the person offering the highest sum for him. Offers may be sent by mail to the Pickwick Fund editor of this newspaper, or you may reach him by telephone (Liberty 300).

QUALITY STRAIN.

Some idea of how good a pup "Bitterwood Breeze" is may be obtained from the fact that his sire is Bitterwood Pup, a famous show dog, which, as a puppy, was never defeated in any show. Pup's recent winners include twenty-four specials during the last Spring show season. He went to winners at Lynn, Springfield, Providence and Framingham. "Breeze" was a winner at "Breeze" and "Breeze" at Framingham, Providence, Springfield and two at Lynn.

Further evidence of the quality of the strain may be gleaned from the fact that "Bitterwood Breeze" is a sister of "Pup," now holds the famous Bitterwood Bowl, won at the last show of the New England Airedale Terrier Club in Newton. This is the Junior breeder's trophy.

When "Bitterwood Breeze" won the Bitterwood Bowl she was adjudged the best Airedale puppy of either sex in the show, and there was a big list of entries. "Pup" is out of "Bitterwood Breeze" by "Master Breeze," both sire and dam have won many prizes.

So there you are, folks. If you know anything about dogs, you will realize what a fine puppy "Bitterwood Breeze" is, and you will want him for yourself or one of the kids, or perhaps a friend.

"I can assure the person who gets 'Bitterwood Breeze' that he will have a wonderful dog," said Mr. Woolner. "I regard the Airedale as the most dependable dog there is, and this particular puppy will be a fine playmate for children, as he inherits 'Bitterwood Pup's' gentleness and intelligence."

I have three children, and realize what a big task Mrs. Alexander has to bring up her six young, fatherless kiddies. I am happy to do my bit in this manner, to help her. I hope a good offer is made for 'Breeze' as he is a good dog and worth it."

More than 200 persons are planning to attend the bridge party in Nantasket next Monday afternoon arranged by Mrs. C. K. Holgers. The party is to be held at her home at the junction of Beach avenue and Adams street, Weymouth. Prizes for the feminine lawn tennis tournament for each table by the Touraine Golf Company of Boston. It is expected that Mrs. Holgers' action will be followed by other women summing at Greater Boston resorts.

Los Angeles, July 17.—Jack Kearns is pained by the man he plied into the world's heavyweight boxing championship, and he doesn't care who knows it. Jack Dempsey's reported announcement in New York that he would henceforth handle his own boxing business was the straw that broke the back of his fight manager's customary patience.

The terms of the settlement have not been made public, the entry on the court docket being "settled party."

Tucker's romance figured back in 1924, when he was pitching for the Boston High school nine. Ruth Porter, a Walpole High school senior, was present at the game between the two schools and saw Tucker save the day for his team. An introduction, mutual admiration and love and marriage followed.

Edmond Corrigan, aged twenty-seven, of No. 129 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, is through acting the role of Good Samaritan. He has reported to the police that a penniless youth whom he befriended, took into his home and fed and then gave a place to sleep, has disappeared, taking $8 from the Corrigan exchange.

Corrigan told the police he met the young man near the head of Harvard bridge. The stranger made an appeal for help and Corrigan took him home and kept him for several days. He even managed to get a job for the stranger but during the night the guest and the money disappeared.

Corrigan said the man gave him the name of John Caren, and described him as about twenty-four years old, five feet six inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds, medium complexion. He wore a blue suit, a straw hat, and had no collar.

HOLD COURT IN HOSPITAL FOR AUTO CASE

Salem Judge to Hear Testimony of Man Hurlled From Bicycle

Salem, July 17.—For the first time in the history of the Salem District Court a sitting of that tribunal will be held in the Salem Hospital this afternoon when Judge Robert W. Hill will visit the institution and listen to the testimony of Arthur C. Walker, thirty-one years old, of Middleton, who is suffering from injuries, including a compound fracture of both legs.

Walker was knocked off his bicycle on the Andover turnpike in Middleton on the night of June 22 and Cyril F. Greene, also of Middleton, is accused of driving the car that struck him.

Greene is on trial charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, operating in such a manner as to endanger the lives and safety of the public and going away after an accident without making himself known. He was arrested at a Middleton road house several hours after the accident.

Walker was picked up by neighbors who found him unconscious and with a broken tonic bottle in his pocket. One of the headlights of Greene's car was smashed and the police claim that pieces of glass found near the victim match the other headlight.

The girl testified that after she saw the bicycle rider she and Greene went to Lynn and later returned to the road house, not far from the scene of the accident.

London, July 17 (HNS)—Great Britain has flatly informed the United States, France and Japan that she is opposed at this time to any conference of the powers to consider the question of abolishing extraterritoriality in China, which President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg have been trying to arrange.

The British government's attitude was heard today, was communicated to Ambassador Houghton and the French and Japanese ambassadors by Foreign Minister Chamberlain, who invited the diplomats to Downing street.

BUILDERS WILL NOT ACCEPT U. S. ADVICE

Boston Employers Appeal to
Davis to Make Impartial
Review

That the Boston Building Trades Employers' organization feels that "it is in no way bound by the recommendations" of the three Federal conciliators who recently brought about a temporary settlement of the strike of building laborers, is indicated in an appeal the employers have just made to Secretary of Labor, James J. Davis.

The employers ask the secretary to make an impartial review of the findings of the conciliators, indicating that the action of the Federal board is not entirely satisfactory.

The employers have signed three-year wage scale agreements with nine skilled trades, but the laborers struck for higher wages. The employers had agreed with the other unions that wages for 1925 would remain the same as during the past year, after which wage increase demands would be arbitrated. The employers insisted that to keep faith with the other unions they could not grant a wage increase to the laborers.

In their report the commissioners recommended that the parties join in an arbitration and submit the question: "What is a fair wage to laborers in the building industry?"

They also further recommend "that the parties complete the arbitration agreement," the so-called "peace pact" by adopting the following provision: "Whenever controversy fails to adjust a dispute each party shall choose an arbitrator and the two so chosen shall select a third, who shall be chairman. If the arbitrators first chosen fail to agree in five days on the selection of a third, either or both shall notify the Secretary of Labor, Washington, D. C., and such notification shall be his authority to name the

The communication of the employer to Secretary Davis by John F. Walsh, secretary of the association, calls for a complete and impartial review of the entire case and subject matter at issue between the contending parties.

EPISCOPAL RITE AT VANDERBILT WEDDING

Though Muriel is Catholic, She Will Follow Family Faith

Newport, R. I., July 17.—A mild shock to summer society was caused here today by the announcement that the Vanderbilt Church wedding, which will be solemnized on July 26, will be performed by a bishop and clergyman of the Protestant faith.

While the members of the Vanderbilt family are Protestants, Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, the bride-to-be, like her mother, has been raised a Catholic. The groom-to-be, Frederick C. Church, Jr., of Boston, former Harvard star athlete and now an insurance broker, is of the Protestant faith.

8 MEN AND A WOMAN HELD IN RUM RAIDS

The aftermath to three federal raids in Chelsea and Boston was the arraignment before United States Commissioner Jenney of eight men and a woman, charged with violation of the Volstead act.

Half of $100 for each was set for a hearing on July 20. It was provided in each case. Those arraigned were Samuel Morris and Israel Abramowitz, Carl Friedman, Morris Hahn, Philip Yudelov and Mrs. Rose Gimm, all of Chelsea, and Daniel McNeil and Richard Edwards of Boston.

HUB ALHAMBRA DELEGATES ON WAY HOME

Party Will Stop Over in New York on Return Trip to Boston

Atlantic City, N. J., July 17.—The main body of the Boston delegation to the biennial convention of the order of Alhambra left here today on the return journey which will be made by easy stages.

The Boston party will stop in Philadelphia and then go to New York, where the night will be spent and the delegates will arrive in Boston some time late Saturday afternoon.

No group of delegates was happier than the Boston contingent as a result of the election of Dr. Harry F. McLeod of Dorchester as supreme commander of the order.

It is expected that in the next two years the progress of the order will be more marked than during any period of the past 10 years. The closing conference this morning laid largely to do with plans for the coming two years and representatives of the order from all sections left for home with definite ideas of just what the new grand commander has in mind.

It is settled that henceforth admission of new members will be on a far more selective basis than ever before. It was reported from Chicago, New York, Boston and other places it was rather easy to build up large caravans but it was often found that from a large class of new members a percentage soon fell by the wayside.

To avoid this in the future, candidates will only be more carefully selected.

PHOEBE HEARST RANCH GOES TO COUNTRY CLUB

San Francisco, July 17.—Sale of the Phoebe Hearst ranch, which has been under negotiations for the past year, was consummated Wednesday when the deed was filed in the Alameda County courts conveying the estate to the newly-organized Castwood Country Club.

The estate includes 510 acres of land, and since it was developed many years ago, some two and a half to three million dollars has been spent upon it. The main house is 750 feet long, in the old mission style, and sumptuously fitted.

The furnishings will be complete within sixty days, and the house ready for occupancy by the middle of September. Frank Blyler, president of the club, said about $100,000 will be spent in completing the golf course and other additions.

ROXBURY MAN HELD ON LIQUOR CHARGE

The police of the Fields Corner station arrested Jacob Dreker, who gives his address as No. 17 Dale street, Roxbury, alleged owner of the garage where nearly 2,000 gallons of high grade alcohol were seized. He was charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

STARS ENTERTAIN INVALID TOTS

A group of singers and dancers from the "No, No, Nanette" Company, now playing at the Tremont Theatre, dropped out to the Children's Hospital on Huntington avenue and entertained the little invalids.

'L' TO PROVIDE PARKING SPACE FOR AUTOS

A new scheme to relieve automobile traffic in Boston is to be tried out by the Boston Elevated.

A large parking space has been secured near the Everett terminal of the Elevated and here automobiles may check their cars each day for a sum of probably 25 cents and then ride into the city on the Elevated, returning in the evening and securing their cars for the ride home.

The Elevated will lease the space to a private firm which will have charge of the checking of the cars. Similar parking spaces are available at Kendall square, Forest Hills, Andrew square, Field's Corner and in other sections, but these will not be taken up until the Elevated scheme has been tried out.

The parking spaces will only be provided at terminals along the rapid transit line.

THAT DELIGHTED Mr. Bryan and other high spirited Americans that could not bear a monkey ancestor.

It didn't worry them at all, apparently, to think that men should have monkeys for their descendants.

Some men would rather have a monkey ancestor than a monkey descendant. You responsible for your descendants, not for your ancestors.

THERE ARE many ways of getting information. The Judge in the Darwin-Bryan key trial named a committee to learn how it happened that the International News Service had obtained, in advance, his decision on the request of Scope's lawyers to quash the indictment.

Before Judge Keaton made it public, International News printed his decision.

THE JUDGE learned from his committee that he himself had supplied the advance information to Mr. Hutchinson of International News who got the "news beat."

It was simple. The reporter asked, "Will your decision on the quashing of the indictment be issued in time for the evening papers?"

"I do not know," said the judge, severely.

"But," asked the reporter, "if your decision does come out quite early in the afternoon will you proceed with the case that afternoon or postpone it until the next day?"

"I shall proceed at once with the case," replied the dignified judge.

Then the International News reporter knew all that he wanted to know and that was that the judge had decided to go on with the case. Therefore he had decided not to quash the indictment.

CONCERNING that famous monkey trial, more words are sent over the cable to Europe and the rest of the world, including Australia, than were ever before sent concerning anything in the United States.

When ignorance starts to make itself ridiculous it often succeeds beyond its wildest hopes.

RUBBER JUMPED to 50 cents. That made everybody gasp. Then it went to $1. Now it has reached $1.12. That is because His Majesty's British subjects, who control the rubber market, know how to manage prices.

American farmers see crop prices dropping, and they are always uncertain. That is because farmers who could control the price of food have no efficient organization. They have something to learn from the rubber trust, and a few other trusts.

STATE PICKS FARMS VACATIONISTS WANT

An Assembled and disassembled "Summer boarder" will return from their vacation in Maine, where they spent this summer feeling that all farmers are related to both Jesus and Ananias.

The "Summer boarder" business has this year been taken under the wing of the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture. Questionnaires were sent to the majority of farmers who "take in" Summer boarders and the answers utilized for prospective vacationists.

BUY LAND FOR STIGMATINI SCHOOL

Order Will Educate Boys to Enter Priesthood at Waltham Institution

The Stigmatini Fathers, an order which had its origin during the French Revolution, have purchased property in Waltham, where they will open a Juniorate school for the education of boys desiring to enter the order.

Boys of seven years and older are to be taken as pupils. For the present, pending the establishment of the school, they will be educated at the Catholic schools.

The Stigmatini Fathers have established headquarters at No. 204 Lexington street, Waltham.

The Institute of the Stigmatini Fathers has conducted an apostolate among Italians in the United States for many years, but boys of any nationality will be accepted as recruits.

The recruits are for the community in this country, although the institute is engaged in missionary work in China and South America.

The order was founded by the venerable Father Bernard of Varone, Italy. Pope Pius XI has entrusted the fathers with the erection and conduct of a seminary for native priests in China and they also are conducting an Indian mission in Brazil.

A Thrilling Novel of Love and Adventure, Mystery and Intrigue That Every-One Will Want to Read

Sally, gagged, her ankles and wrists bound with strips of cloth, was handled like a child by LAZARUS.

Post by Louise Goss, star of "No. 10, Nantasket," and Charles Williams of the same company. Photo by Charles G. Meyer.

SALLY MEREDITH, neely niece of M. FREDERICK LASALLE, was gas inventor, is entrusted with the secret of opening the red lacquer case containing the formula sought by spies of rival governments. That night the red lacquer case is stolen and Lasalle mysteriously disappears. The case is so constructed that the formula is destroyed by one hit in the secret.

MAJOR BILL ARMSTRONG, seven years previously the sweetheart of Sally, appears in search of Lasalle. Unexpected meeting renews acquaintance, but Sally is coy and Bill blunders. At Smugglers' Leap Bill and Sally find Lasalle's fountain pen, while evidence which adds to the fears of Bill. Sally clings to hope.

DETECTIVE WILLIAMS enters the mystery and takes up the trail of the stolen case.

ETTA SHAW, once friend of Sally, lures the girl to London. She is made a prisoner by Lasalle, the Gogol Terror. Lasalle attempts to terrorize Sally, but fails. Sally's jailers learn from spies that Bill is coming to search Etta's house, the prison. Etta pretends to let Sally escape so that they may recapture her when Bill goes.

Read on and enjoy this wonderful story of love and mystery.

INSPECTOR WILLIAMS and Bill Armstrong drove away from Etta's house carrying with them the little linen handkerchief and the memory of Etta's face.

At the cross roads Bill drew up.

"What do you make of it, Williams?" he said, and the inspector said he didn't make very much of it anyway. The man at Ledington thought that there were two ladies in the car. He recognized Miss Shaw, and thought that there was someone with her. You think you've found Miss Meredith's handkerchief. There's a devil too much thinking about the whole thing."

He was silent for a moment, and then said:

"You don't like Miss Shaw, I may say so, and naturally that makes you think worse of her than you would on the evidence alone. I don't like her either, but—well, facts are what we want, and, as I see no good as to drive me into Ledington, I'll use it if I can check some of her statements. I want to know if the chauffeur really went in there to get a prescription made up, and one or two things like that. It will settle, and come up by train if you want to get back."

"All right."

But, as they parted in Ledington, Bill had a word to say.

"Evidence or no evidence, that woman's a wrong 'un," he said. "Take it from me, Williams, she's a wrong 'un through and through, and I'm dead sure she knows something—dead sure of it."

The conviction grew as he drove alone, mile after mile of dark wet road slipping away from him. Lonely roads at first, then houses, lights, and the intersecting train lines, and the packed life of outlying London. He was driving slowly along a crowded thoroughfare, now shaking his turn in a block, now edging ahead of some lumbering drags, when, there on the dirty pavement under the glare of the crude electric light which advertised a cinema, he caught sight of a face he knew. It was a dramatic face, now an old felt hat. The round blue eyes looked directly at him. Bill Armstrong uttered a wordless exclamation, ran his car into the side of the road, pulled up, and jumped out, all in the space of a minute. He came up with the driver. They figure a couple of yards from where he had stopped the car. The man had his back to him. Bill

CARLSON KILLS BATTLE INSECTS

Moquito Swarms Interfere With Repairs on Ship's Broken Propeller

Swimming in water warmer than is enjoyed at many beaches near Boston—fighting mosquitoes which appear in swarms so thick the members of the crew climb to the top of masts to escape them—giggling fish through Arctic waters with a pitchfork—these are some of the tales that unfolded themselves from the air early today from Donald B. MacMillan.

A dispatch as interesting as a novel was sent by MacMillan from his ship the Bowdoin at Hopedale, Labrador, to the National Geographic Society at Washington, D. C.

The story was apparently relayed by Commander MacMillan himself, and it tells of the difficulties he and his crew are experiencing in putting a new propeller on the Bowdoin, while the elder ship, the Peary, awaits off the coast of Greenland.

When the Bowdoin's propeller broke, it was necessary to beach the boat at Hopedale to repair the damage. MacMillan's message tells how the men are patching the time.

"Still beached at Hopedale while Peary off Greenland coast, south of Disco Island beyond the Arctic circle."

"After good crawling at low tide this morning the lockers of the broken propeller were removed with shaft under one and a half feet of water, too deep to allow heavy hammering necessary to remove it and substitute new propeller."

"All weights, including spare anchor chain and ammunition carried forward. Heavy boat full of water swung from port bow and slaved 40-pound cables of gasoline tramped to small boats while six huge pumps are used under the bow to lift the Bowdoin further onto shore."

"Heavy work comes at high tide and low tide, night and day, and to keep up morale and keep men fit, the game of playground ball was played this afternoon."

"Several Labradorians initiated into the secret of the game. Young Eskimos took deep interest and Father took leading suspiciously at the ball."

FASTS 33 DAYS AND FINDS HE LIKES IT

Chicago, July 17 (A.P.)—For better health, alternately eat and take long fasts, advises Frederick Hoedel, an assistant of the University of Chicago physicians department.

Prolonged hunger is not the ordeal that hunger strikers would lead the doctor to think, he says, for he never fasted more than the first two days of the fast. He had a hard time walking during the period of abstention, but regained twenty of it in less than eight days afterward.

Hoedel, who is on a meat diet immediately preceding his enforced hunger, Hoedel did not feel perfectly normal the first two days of the fast. He had a hard time walking during the period of abstention, but regained twenty of it in less than eight days afterward.

Hoedel broke the fast with orange juice and a pound of salmon. He had a hard time walking during the period of abstention, but regained twenty of it in less than eight days afterward.

ADAM'S EYE SEEN FOR 'GOOD TIME'

Schenectady Slayer Shot His Victim in Cold Blood and Robbed Homes of Kin

While the body of Zita C. Nickerson was being lowered into the grave of a little cemetery at Chatham, the police of Schenectady, N. Y., were listening to a seventeen-year-old boy confess to one of the most cold-blooded murders in the history of the country, and of which the Chatham man was the victim.

Nickerson was shot down and killed by Frederick Smith while on his way to work at the Schenectady plant of the General Electric Co. Smith, a young man of 17, was charged with the murder of the 21-year-old woman.

YOUTH WANTED 513

Nickerson, twenty-eight, had been working in Chicago as a hardware salesman for some months. He is wanted taking his wife and child to Chicago, but leaving for Cape Cod and home, he decided to come East instead.

The youthful slayer, according to Schenectady dispatches, was cool as he described the murder.

"I had $37, I wanted $50 to go to school, and I had $13, so I shot him six times to get the money."

Following the murder and the robbery of Nickerson's body of the $13 and a gold watch, Young Smith in his confession declared that he had robbed the house of his grand mother and father, and that he had stolen a car from his father.

Young Smith, who got into trouble here two years ago and served a sentence at the Rochester School of Industry, says he had stolen a car from his father.

The larger role into this city. They arrived July 1 and stopped at Smith's home on Curry road.

Nickerson was shot of money and word a friend, E. J. Sawyer of Chatham, Mass., for funds. On July 1 he was notified that $15 had arrived by the telegraph office. While Augustus J. Smith, the boy's father, and Nickerson went to get this money the boy took Nickerson's revolver from a holster and tackled him.

The boy took the revolver, he said, and pulled the trigger. He fired two shots. The two drove the boy to the floor. He was shot in the chest and the leg.

The Coal Strike

Big Job for a Big Man

The President will interest himself in the threatened coal strike. If, without using soldiers or injunctions, he can stop the disastrous industrial civil war between employers and employees he will do more for this country than any man has done since Lincoln.

The difficulty is shown in the reply made to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., when he demanded from Senator Watson, who runs the Consolidated Coal Company, which Mr. Rockefeller partly owns, an explanation of charges made by Lewis, leader of the miners. Senator Watson replied that NON-UNION miners could produce coal so cheaply that union mines could not compete, and it was necessary to close the union mines, or set aside union working conditions.

Lincoln said this country could not survive half slave and half free. THAT problem he solved.

The question for the President to decide is whether or not the nation can live at peace, industrially and otherwise, half UNION and half NON-UNION.

Mr. Chief Justice Taft, when running for the Presidency, and asked a complicated question about poverty, replied: "God knows, I don't." That was modest, but it didn't lead to anything.

President Coolidge will try to find a more definite answer to this difficult mining problem.

The first thing is to protect 115,000,000 Americans.

The second thing is to protect MINERS that work in danger of their lives.

Third comes the duty to protect invested capital in its just rights.

Women as Tinklers

Take Nancy Hanks, for Instance

Dr. Oldfield, distinguished and learned Britisher, discovers that women amount to little after all. "Women have been tinklers on the mandolin and piano through all ages, but it is among them that the creative musicians are found." So says the proud Doctor.

That would interest Lincoln's mother. She didn't "tinkle" the mandolin to any great extent.

The learned doctor continues: "If search is made in Westminster Abbey for records of the great women of England, one will find a few actresses and courtesans, but none who were worthy of being commemorated as poets, painters, sculptors, inventors, world pioneers or benefactors."

That's true, but Mrs. Lincoln decided things in Westminster Abbey. It isn't the women's fault if the men preferred "a few actresses and courtesans" to their own mothers, or the mothers of great men.

One of those graves in Westminster contains the bodies of Lord Chatham and his son, the great Pitt, both Prime Ministers of England. That tomb is a monument primarily to the MOTHERS of Chatham and Pitt. If you look through the Vatican and St. Peter's, you don't find Michael Angelo. You find his works, the marvelous Sistine Chapel and the bronze statue of Mary, with her Son on her lap.

Those are the works of Michael Angelo, although he isn't there.

And all the men in Westminster Abbey are the works of women. So is Dr. Oldfield. Write that down, you who see in women only "tinklers on the mandolin."

Wasting Men

It Also Proves Lack of Intelligence

England worries, as well she may, about her unemployment. Of every TEN workmen ONE is idle, and that means a great deal more than 1,000,000 men doing nothing and fed by "doles" from the taxpayers.

The British government, free from our provincial fear of paternalism, knows that it is bad enough to have men IDLE and that it would be desperately dangerous to let them go hungry.

The dole system, weekly payments to the unemployed, has this bad side: It creates a professional idle class preferring life on a bare minimum to any kind of hard work.

Since the British pay their idle, it is strange that they cannot in some way enable them to EARN THEIR KEEP.

The farmer manages to keep his "all-year-round help" busy in the winter somehow mending fences, clearing new ground.

A nation is nothing but a great farm, and every intelligent nation should find a way to use productively every pair of hands.

Thought and Garbage

Too Little of One, Too Much of the Other

When Shakespeare was a boy his father was punished for maintaining an offensive pig before his door. All that has been eliminated by sewers and by laws. But what little villages did with their streets, great cities do with their lakes, harbors, and other waterfronts, making them foul with garbage.

Garbage could be turned into useful fertilizing material or at least burned.

All sewerage could and should be scientifically used, saving big and little bodies of water from pollution. But there is, in our civilization, a great deal of garbage, and very little thought.

J. S. Bolton, learned psychologist, says the wisest man uses only ONE-TENTH of his brain capacity, and that we should become a race of "INTELLECTUAL GIANTS" if we used our brains as we ought.

The government doesn't use one-tenth of ONE PER CENT of its brain capacity. With unlimited power, money and authority it leaves swamps and deserts untouched to breed disease, gladly spends dozens of billions to help in killing men, but doesn't spend any money to kill mosquitoes, flies and disease germs that afflict the world.

The Hot Weather Still Keeps Up

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland

H EAR now, my Daughter, the Complaint of a Cynic, which every man chanceth in his heart. Alas, alas, saith the Cynic, I live in a world of arms and the man-but of legs and the woman!

For I, I am weary of beholding (I don't say where, never I say they smile mine eyes and offend my sense of beauty). I am an omniscient conductor, who when not in the line of all the clocking in a track, and for whom life holdeth no thrill.

For that which was once a privilege hath become an affliction—and that which was a matter of shame, hath become a matter of course.

You, verily, I am weary of legs and of the sight of legs! Of bare legs belted saucily, gaudily, coquettishly beneath firm, firm skirts.

Of angular legs, in "invisible" hose, that resemble an inviolable "chattering Armada." Of thick ankles adorned with emerald chokers.

Of tenuous ankles, like "linked sweetest long-drawn out" or broomsticks supporting a barrel.

Of rouged knees above rolled stockings—and of knobby knees protruding beneath cat-suit-bathing suits.

Of long flat feet, camouflaged with glittering buckles—and of stubby feet in brocade pumps.

Of grotesque legs adorned in ribbon—adorned with beery legs painted with butterflies to accentuate their ugliness.

Of bowed legs that trip jauntily down the avenue—and of knock-kneed legs that skim airily upon the dancing floor.

Of fat legs, skinny legs, purple legs, red legs and scurched legs drawn upon the bathing beach.

Surely, the Venus de Milo was a wise and subtle woman—for neither her legs nor her arms were left visible!

And the more a woman displays of her charms, the less hath a man left to dream about.

Verily, a fleeting glimpse of a feminine ankle was once the THIRDLING of a man's life. But now it hath come to pass that a leg is only a leg!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

THE spell of heat is on the land, no clouds bring cool relief to earth, by sky's bright arches spanned; no breeze stir any leaf's soft sigh. The sun his malice shows, and down a portion of his spirit doth pour on every shining beam. The spell of heat is on the land from dawn till day is done the golden haze on every head. BEAUTY AND STRENGTH IN SIMPLICITY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

S IMPLICITY is a source of strength and beauty. Most things offend us by their vulgarity and overdisplay because of a departure from the rules of simplicity.

Good manners are usually simple manners, a direct adaptation of the deed to the requirements of the thing done. Affectation is waste motion.

Good words are simple words. Much is gained when one has learned to eliminate from his speech all the unnecessary verbiage. Words then are used for expressing thought and not to disguise it.

It is harder to talk in simple language and to use short Anglo-Saxon words than it is to be very verbose with words that mean nothing.

A man was engaged to write an article for a paper for $100. He was asked to cut it as long as it was too long. He said he would write a shorter article, but it would cost twice as much, as it was more difficult to write a short one than a long one.

It is a rare accomplishment to be able to express your subject directly in simple language so that everybody can understand you.

Some people who know things very well are unable to express their wisdom because they have never learned the art of simplicity.

The secret of good dressing is simplicity. Dresses now are more sensible than ever before because they have less frills and furbelows on them. There are no bustles nor nut-ton-chop shoulders nor other absurdities in feminine apparel. There is simply a loose slip to cover the form. As a rule the simpler the dress the more elegant and more modest it is. Our thoughts would be clearer if they were simpler. We should avoid much confusion if we simply avoided exaggeration and ambiguity.

What we mean when we say a man has vision is that he thinks in simple, straight lines. He does not confuse himself with words he does not understand.

The greatest difficulty with wealth is that it increases our complexity of living. We get too many artificial wants. That man is happiest whose wants are fewest and whose life is simplest. He gets more out of living than the next man.

One of the great things, therefore, is to learn how to do without things, to learn to keep our wants simple and our surroundings simple, so that life may be lived with the least obstruction.

We will find that in seeking simplicity we acquire both strength and beauty.

HOW DAYLIGHT HIDES THE STARS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

IT is possible to see stars in the daytime from the bottom of a deep mine or shaft? If not, how did the statement that it is possible cause such a stir?

You will look through a pasteboard tube an inch or less in diameter, and a few inches long, at an illuminated object, in a room or out of doors, you will get an effect resembling that supposed to be seen from the bottom of a deep well or shaft.

You will perceive that the object appears more distinct than when looked at without the tube, and that the light reflected from them, and no magnification; but only a shielding of the eye from conflicting lights.

Now I say aside the tube, and the light reflected from them, and no magnification; but only a shielding of the eye from conflicting lights.

With a Coin

I push the experiment a step farther. I take a French 15-centime piece, placed in the center with a hole about the size of the pupil of the eye, and I look at the times on the books through the hole in the coin held close to the eye. This is not a tube, for its length is but a fraction of its width, and yet I get just the same effect that I got with the tube.
